

Hunted by her vindictive ex and his obedient pack of lethal followers, Flame knows that her life hinges on escaping her pursuers. But her only salvation may lie in her ability to make a deal with the most deadly werewolf in all of Cambria. It's been six years since Flame spent a searing night of passion in the arms of a young werewolf general, his future full of promise and potential. Now, six years wiser, Flame is running from a history that isn't just haunted by mistakes and bad choices, but it's hunting her with a vengeance. With her life and that of her young son's in the balance, she needs to find a way of escaping. Her future though, may lie with her past. But the young werewolf general has grown, and those arms that once held her tight are now known only for the destruction they cause his enemies. Wolf Romadoche has a deadly reputation for being one of Cambria's most lethal werewolf leaders, and if she wants his protection she'll have to make him a deal. Tell him all of her secrets at any cost. The hardest secret to tell of all though is the one she should have told him six years ago...
