

This is by far the best home study audio course for Chinese Herbal Medicine you can find. This lecture is designed for all students of Oriental Medicine Medical Schools, as well as for any one who is interested in Chinese Herbal Medicine. Chinese medicine is attracting more and more international interest. Unfortunately, though, available publications on Chinese medicine are either too specialized or too technical to be easily understood by the general public. The accurate translation of Chinese medical terminology into English presented a considerable challenge. The many unfamiliar and obscure theories and terms inherent in Chinese medicine present great obstacles in translation but we at the Institute are overcoming the difficulties step by step. This audio course is designed to contribute to the health of English-speaking people throughout the world by providing the most accurate and detailed information with regard to the history, theory and practice of Traditional Chinese herbal medicine. TABLE OF CONTENT: History of Chinese Medicine; General Concepts of Chinese Herbal Medicine; Yin and Yang; Weak and Strong; Outside and Inside; Three Yang and Three Yin-The Six Disease Stages; The Etiology of Disease; Diagnosis in Chinese Herbal Medicine; Pulse Diagnosis; Abdominal Palpation; Tongue Diagnosis; Principles of Treatment ; Sweating; Vomiting; Purging; Harmonizing; Warming; Removing; Supplementing; Reducing; Principles of Treatment; Blood Disease; Qi Disease; Water Accumulation; Pain; Rheumatism; Hypertension; Hypotension; Chills; Palpitations; Impotence; Hysteria; Eye Disease; Chronic Constipation; Properties and Actions of Herbal Drugs; The Seven Effects of Drugs; Incompatibilities of Drugs; Classification of Drugs; An Overview of Prescriptions; Formulation in Chinese medicine; A modern formula; An ancient formula; Major Energetic Imbalances
